Task: Discuss with a partner about how the society can be improved if there are no gender-based stereotypes. Then write a coherent paragraph of 150 words using 2-3 transition words.

Brainstorm

- If there's no gender discrimination or stereotypes, the world will prosper as both men and women will get equal opportunities.
- Mental health
- Equality
- Relationship dynamics
- Personal growth

Ans.

The absence of gender-based stereotypes can indeed significantly enhance society, as a result there will be no gender discrimination leading to both men and women getting equal opportunities at getting compelling jobs. Therefore, they are hired based on their skills and abilities rather than their gender.

Without gender based stereotypes, individuals can express themselves more freely and more authentically, leading to improved mental health and emotional wellbeing. Furthermore, it can reduce the pressure to conform to the societal norms and expectations that are often based on gender.

Eliminating gender based stereotypes can lead to healthier and more balanced relationship dynamics. Individuals can engage in relationships based on mutual respect and understanding rather than conforming to pre-determining gender roles. Additionally, individuals have the freedom to pursue personal development and self expression without limitations imposed by societal norms that can lead to a more diverse and rich society with a wider range of perspective and talents. In conclusion, society will be a better place without gender based stereotypes.
